

WHITMAN WORKS ON MURDER CLUES IGNORED BY POLICE

had gone to "Bridge" Webber's poker rooms, on Sixth avenue near Forty-second street, at 11.30 o'clock that night to meet Jack Sullivan there by appointment and collect $150 which Sullivan owed him.

Never having been at Webber's before, Paul said, he did not know how to get in. Webber came along in an open hack, saying he had been at the fight at Madison Square Garden and let him in. Paul waited about some time but did not see Sullivan, Rose or Scheppe. At about 1 o'clock he went to the Lincoln Hotel and went to bed. Sullivan came in at about 2 o'clock, woke him and told him Rosenthal had been killed and also produced the $150.

"I told him to give it to the clerk," Paul said, according to Dougherty, "and tell him to put it in the safe for me and then I rolled over and went to sleep."

Jack Sullivan was held as a material witness in $100 bail.

So many persons had gathered for the hearings that the Coroner adjourned court from his office to the empty rooms of Special Sessions in the Criminal Courts Building. The court room filled to the jamming point in a few minutes. A flustered policeman grabbed Jack Rose as a Tomba keeper was bringing him in, saying that he had orders to let no one else in.

"All right," said Rose with a dry smile, and turned toward the street door of the building. He was grabbed and the policeman was led to see a light.

Just before the inquest William J. Scheffelin of the Citizens' Union called on District-Attorney Whitman to say that there were now ample pledges from members of the Citizens' Union and their friends to provide the District-Attorney with all the money he needed with which to go to the very bottom of the Rosenthal case, with or without the assistance of the police.

When the Coroner's hearings were finished, Abe Hahlo, a gambler who has had several secret conferences with Mr. Whitman, went to the District-Attorney's office. Mr. Scheffelin, who had attended the hearing, went in with him, and the two were in conference with Mr. Whitman nearly an hour. Hahlo was a close friend of Rosenthal and is one of the men who met Rosenthal on his way to the Metropole and begged him to go back home because he was sure to be killed. Hahlo is said to have been in the confidence of both sides in the gamblers' war.

MAYOR ORDERS WALDO TO WORK WITH WHITMAN.

Commissioner Waldo and Deputy Commissioner Dougherty soon after their arrival at Police Headquarters to-day went to the Criminal Courts Building to call on District-Attorney Whitman. It was generally understood that the visit was made by direction of Mayor Gaynor. There has been almost as much activity by the Police Commissioner and the Deputy Commissioner on the one hand and the District-Attorney on the other in making mutual criticisms regarding pursuit of the murderers of Rosenthal as there has been activity in the actual search. The Mayor is understood to have said, in no uncertain language, that these personal arguments can wait until the real murderers are caught and convicted.

The Commissioner and Mr. Dougherty remained with the District-Attorney for nearly half an hour. All three seemed to be on the most cordial terms when Mr. Whitman saw the police officials to the door.

Mr. Waldo went at once to the City Hall and had a half hour consultation with the Mayor.

"There is nothing to be said for publication," Mr. Waldo said, when he left the City Hall, "of my talk with the Mayor. Nor is anything to be said of my talk with Mr. Whitman. We are all doing the best we can and hope to prove very soon that we have done well."

CHAUFFEUR SCARED IN GRAND JURY ROOM.

Otto Verdi, the chauffeur for Col. Sternberg of the Twenty-second Regiment of the National Guard, whose car was used by Lieut. Becker on the night before the murder, was sent to District-Attorney Whitman to-day by his employer. While the District-Attorney did not intend to begin the grand jury hearings until they can be started with the testimony of the gambler's widow, he thought to save time by sending Verdi at once to the Grand Jury room.

The chauffeur came out after twenty minutes flushed and trembling. He repeated several times: "I'm afraid I am in trouble."

Verdi said he had told the Grand Jury of taking Becker and his lawyer, John W. Hart, from Hart's office to his home in West Ninth street and taking Becker on to the garage in West Fifteenth street, where the car was left. The chauffeur and Becker then went to the boxing matches at Madison Square Garden. Afterward Verdi went for the car again and took Becker, Jack Sullivan and a newspaper man to Park Row and then again uptown. Verdi told of dropping the newspaper man out and then Sullivan at Forty-second street and Sixth avenue and of taking Becker directly home. He was subpoenaed to appear again on Wednesday.

Mrs. Rebecca Scheppe, mother of the missing witness Sam Scheppe, known as "Schaape," appeared with a subpoena, accompanied by her son John, to tell what she knew of the whereabouts of Samuel.

The District-Attorney believes that he knows the names of the men whose names pulled the triggers of the revolvers which killed Rosenthal. He has no evidence to show that any of the men under arrest had a part in the act of killing. He feels that the police have allowed the assassins—as distinct from the men who may have plotted the murder and paid the price for it—to slip through their fingers.

Mr. Whitman gets indignant every time he dwells on this side of the matter in talks with his associates and his friends.

It is the duty of the police, the District-Attorney holds, to hunt down murderers and arrest them, and the District-Attorney's duties begin with the preparation of the case against them and their prosecution in court. Through the Citizens' Union the District-Attorney has been able to employ the services of the William J. Burns detective agency to do some of the work that he feels the police have botched; but the Burns men had lost four valuable days when they started to work, and lack the summary powers of the police.

The District-Attorney sent out to-day for "Dollar John" Langer, who has been out of town at the Canadian racetracks since the murder. Langer was back in town to-day. He was supposed to be a friend of Rosenthal. When he was sought after the murder, some of his friends said he had run away because he feared Rosenthal's fate—though he was on the Sam Paul outfit, in the group in which Rosenthal's removal was discussed.

MURDER GANG'S LEADER IS SOUGHT.

Harry Vallon, a gambler and poolroom man, known on the east side nearly as well as Jack Rose and with whom the same friends and activities, was asked after by both the police and private detectives to-day in many places which it has been his wont to frequent. Vallon's name has been frequently mentioned since the murder as one who knew all the persons concerned every bit as well as Rose.

Vallon was an acquaintance of Rosenthal and is known to have horrified him. Rosenthal at one time when she and her husband met him casually by saying that he had a game at Second avenue and Eleventh street which would be a murder for him for a cent. The police and the District-Attorney have been told that Vallon was in the cafe at the Metropole while Rosenthal was there a few minutes before he went out to be killed.

In this connection District-Attorney Whitman sent out of town to-day to request the presence here of a woman who was in the cafe of the Metropole and who had a talk with Herman Rosenthal not fifteen minutes before he was killed. She is an actress of considerable acquaintance among the all-night crowd which gathered at the hotel and knows pretty well just who was with Rosenthal in the room during the last hours of his life.

Webber's attorney, former assistant District-Attorney Harford T. Marshall, went to Police Headquarters to see him to-day. He was not allowed to go near his client; he was told that only Deputy Commissioner Dougherty would give him permission and that the Deputy Commissioner was coming down late. Marshall, who has a deep grating voice, made resonant use of it and at last left, saying that he meant to get a writ of habeas corpus.

DECLARES WEBBER WAS ROSENTHAL'S FRIEND.

Marshall insists that Webber was a friend of Rosenthal and could not have known anything of the murder plot—notwithstanding that the police and the District-Attorney say they can show that the gray murder car in which some, at least, of the actual killers escaped, repeatedly left passengers at Webber's place before the murder and that groups of rough east side gunmen, seldom seen uptown except singly or when trouble is brewing, entered and left the place in the hour preceding the murder, and that finally Webber was seen running from the Metropole two minutes or less after Rosenthal fell.

Former City Magistrate C. F. G. Wahl, counsel for Sam Paul, also called on Police Headquarters. He said he desired to have no consultation with his client under the restriction of seeing him in a cell, if at all, and went away, Wahl is also counsel for Paul's underling, "Big Jack" Zelig, now on bail for carrying.

HUNDREDS OF CLUES IN LETTERS TO WHITMAN.

The mail received by District-Attorney Whitman at his home and his office was very large. It was nearly a hundred anonymous letters, offering clues to the murder of Rosenthal, and pointing out where evidence of police corruption connected with gambling might be found. The District-Attorney said that many of them seemed very different from ordinary anonymous letters, inasmuch as what they said dealt with information which has come to his hands and has not been made public.

BECKER'S STORY OF HIS RAIDS AND ENEMIES, TOLD BY AIDE

Inside Conspiracy Began When Place Unmolested for 18 Years Because of Official's Interest Was Smashed, Is Story of 'Strong Arm' Man.

This story of Lieut. Becker's activities in the gambling situation in this city is told to The Evening World by a member of his "strong arm" raiding squad. It purports to show that Becker was unmolested in pursuance of his strenuous duties until he "got in bad" through raiding a place in the Broadway district that got him into hot water.

"On Nov. 14 last Lieut. Becker led us against the gambling house of John Freeman at No. 106 West Thirty-eighth street. This well resort for selected players had not been raided in eighteen years. It was one of the gambling houses that had never closed, said to be the only one, but ran on through every police administration. A few of us in the confidence of our chief understood that the raid had been ordered directly by Commissioner Waldo to test out a report made at Police Headquarters that a police inspector had a 25 per cent. interest in the place.

BECKER THREE TIMES ASKED TO BE RELIEVED.

"You might make a note that Lieut. Becker again asked to be transferred the first of the year, when more trouble for him was being brewed in the Broadway district, and at Easter time, when Lieut. Dominick Reilly was placed at the head of another raiding squad, he made a third request to be relieved of the most disagreeable work in the Police Department. He said Lieutenants Reilly and Costigan were competent, and he wanted a wheel and a faro table. Waldo insisted that he stick it out and that he would stand by him until it was absolutely shown to him beyond contradiction that Lieut. Becker was other than an efficient and honest police officer.

"If some of the people of this city who are crying out against Lieut. Becker had any idea of the number of raids we have made, and the desperate fights we have carried forward against political influences emanating from high sources in both parties, they would pause before condemning us to go to the work of a desperate gambler from the lower east side, whose gang of thugs we had about driven out of business.

"The killing of Herman Rosenthal has made it doubly hard for Lieut. Becker. When O'Connor and Dougherty, of our squad, forced an entrance into Rosenthal's place at No. 104 West Forty-fifth street last April, Hull, a nephew of Rosenthal, had an apron on and wore a shield over his eye, having just stopped work at the gambling tables. Some of us heard Rosenthal's wife beseech Lieut. Becker to substitute another prisoner for the man who had been arrested after she had brought up the man for their meeting at the Eika's ball several months before.

SQUAD BELIEVED ROSE WAS BECKER'S STOLEN PIGEON.

"Jack Rose, we all understood, was a stool pigeon for the head of our squad. They were often together, and we found that the chief was usually supplied with the best of information as to how to get into a gambling house after they had talked together. Becker met Rose Oct. 30 last when we raided the place at No. 133 Second avenue he ran in partnership with Sigismund, better known as "Beaneasy" Rosenfeld, better known as Sam Paul's at No. 134 East Thirtieth street. Both of these gamblers were represented in court by Aaron J. Levy, the lawyer now appearing for Libby and Shapiro, owners of the automobile used by the murderers of Herman Rosenthal. Three of the prisoners taken in "Dollar John's" place were convicted and fined $50 apiece, and three of the prisoners from Sam Paul's were convicted and fined like sums. On July 8 we raided Sam Paul's again, and some of the prisoners taken in the first raid and all of those taken in the second raid are still to be tried in the courts. We understand that the real political influence behind Sam Paul is one of the most prominent leaders in the Republican party.

"Herman Rosenthal fought us harder than any of the gamblers we closed down. He had a three-year lease on his place, and under the law his conviction upon our evidence meant the cancellation of the lease. He did not want to go back to the lower east side. In order to retain his prestige as an uptown gambler he was willing to go to any ends in an effort to blacken the reputation of Lieut. Becker.

"Up to the time of his unfortunate killing he was the first instance on record where a gambler was sufficiently cunning to make it appear on the face of things that the man who had closed his place up and was doing his utmost to drive him out of business was really his secret partner.

BECKER BROKE INTO 75 PLACES IN YEAR'S RAIDING.

"Lieut. Becker finished up his first year probably in appreciation of the dismissal of the case against him.

"On March 8th, we raided 'Dollar John's' (Henry Langer) of No. 6 St. Mark's place, and on April 18 we raided Sam Paul's at No. 134 East Thirtieth street. Both of these gamblers were represented in court by Aaron J. Levy, the lawyer now appearing for Libby and Shapiro, owners of the automobile used by the murderers of Herman Rosenthal. Three of the prisoners taken in "Dollar John's" place were convicted and fined $50 apiece, and three of the prisoners from Sam Paul's were convicted and fined like sums. On July 8 we raided Sam Paul's again, and some of the prisoners taken in the first raid and all of those taken in the second raid are still to be tried in the courts. We understand that the real political influence behind Sam Paul is one of the most prominent leaders in the Republican party.

"Herman Rosenthal fought us harder than any of the gamblers we closed down. He had a three-year lease on his place, and under the law his conviction upon our evidence meant the cancellation of the lease. He did not want to go back to the lower east side. In order to retain his prestige as an uptown gambler he was willing to go to any ends in an effort to blacken the reputation of Lieut. Becker.

"Up to the time of his unfortunate killing he was the first instance on record where a gambler was sufficiently cunning to make it appear on the face of things that the man who had closed his place up and was doing his utmost to drive him out of business was really his secret partner.

BECKER BROKE INTO 75 PLACES IN YEAR'S RAIDING.

"Lieut. Becker finished up his first year probably in appreciation of the dismissal of the case against him.

"On March 8th, we raided 'Dollar John's' (Henry Langer) of No. 6 St. Mark's place, and on April 18 we raided Sam Paul's at No. 134 East Thirtieth street. Both of these gamblers were represented in court by Aaron J. Levy, the lawyer now appearing for Libby and Shapiro, owners of the automobile used by the murderers of Herman Rosenthal. Three of the prisoners taken in "Dollar John's" place were convicted and fined $50 apiece, and three of the prisoners from Sam Paul's were convicted and fined like sums. On July 8 we raided Sam Paul's again, and some of the prisoners taken in the first raid and all of those taken in the second raid are still to be tried in the courts. We understand that the real political influence behind Sam Paul is one of the most prominent leaders in the Republican party.

"Herman Rosenthal fought us harder than any of the gamblers we closed down. He had a three-year lease on his place, and under the law his conviction upon our evidence meant the cancellation of the lease. He did not want to go back to the lower east side. In order to retain his prestige as an uptown gambler he was willing to go to any ends in an effort to blacken the reputation of Lieut. Becker.

"Up to the time of his unfortunate killing he was the first instance on record where a gambler was sufficiently cunning to make it appear on the face of things that the man who had closed his place up and was doing his utmost to drive him out of business was really his secret partner.

BECKER BROKE INTO 75 PLACES IN YEAR'S RAIDING.

"Lieut. Becker finished up his first year probably in appreciation of the dismissal of the case against him.

"On March 8th, we raided 'Dollar John's' (Henry Langer) of No. 6 St. Mark's place, and on April 18 we raided Sam Paul's at No. 134 East Thirtieth street. Both of these gamblers were represented in court by Aaron J. Levy, the lawyer now appearing for Libby and Shapiro, owners of the automobile used by the murderers of Herman Rosenthal. Three of the prisoners taken in "Dollar John's" place were convicted and fined $50 apiece, and three of the prisoners from Sam Paul's were convicted and fined like sums. On July 8 we raided Sam Paul's again, and some of the prisoners taken in the first raid and all of those taken in the second raid are still to be tried in the courts. We understand that the real political influence behind Sam Paul is one of the most prominent leaders in the Republican party.

"Herman Rosenthal fought us harder than any of the gamblers we closed down. He had a three-year lease on his place, and under the law his conviction upon our evidence meant the cancellation of the lease. He did not want to go back to the lower east side. In order to retain his prestige as an uptown gambler he was willing to go to any ends in an effort to blacken the reputation of Lieut. Becker.

"Up to the time of his unfortunate killing he was the first instance on record where a gambler was sufficiently cunning to make it appear on the face of things that the man who had closed his place up and was doing his utmost to drive him out of business was really his secret partner.

BECKER BROKE INTO 75 PLACES IN YEAR'S RAIDING.

"Lieut. Becker finished up his first year probably in appreciation of the dismissal of the case against him.

Men Held in Rosenthal Case but Real Killers Are Free

LOUIS LIBBY, JACK ROSE, JACK SULLIVAN.

LOUIS LIBBY, JACK ROSE, JACK SULLIVAN.

Jack Rose hired the auto but left it before the murder; Libby owns the car, but wasn't in it at time of slaying; Shapiro drove car but was asleep at time of shooting; Webber runs poker room, designated as "Headquarters of the murderers"; Sullivan is a friend of Becker's who left the Lieutenant near the scene of killing.

get into a gambling house after they had talked together. Becker met Rose Oct. 30 last when we raided the place at No. 133 Second avenue he ran in partnership with Sigismund, better known as "Beaneasy" Rosenfeld, better known as Sam Paul's at No. 134 East Thirtieth street. Both of these gamblers were represented in court by Aaron J. Levy, the lawyer now appearing for Libby and Shapiro, owners of the automobile used by the murderers of Herman Rosenthal. Three of the prisoners taken in "Dollar John's" place were convicted and fined $50 apiece, and three of the prisoners from Sam Paul's were convicted and fined like sums. On July 8 we raided Sam Paul's again, and some of the prisoners taken in the first raid and all of those taken in the second raid are still to be tried in the courts. We understand that the real political influence behind Sam Paul is one of the most prominent leaders in the Republican party.

"Herman Rosenthal fought us harder than any of the gamblers we closed down. He had a three-year lease on his place, and under the law his conviction upon our evidence meant the cancellation of the lease. He did not want to go back to the lower east side. In order to retain his prestige as an uptown gambler he was willing to go to any ends in an effort to blacken the reputation of Lieut. Becker.

"Up to the time of his unfortunate killing he was the first instance on record where a gambler was sufficiently cunning to make it appear on the face of things that the man who had closed his place up and was doing his utmost to drive him out of business was really his secret partner.

BECKER BROKE INTO 75 PLACES IN YEAR'S RAIDING.

"Lieut. Becker finished up his first year probably in appreciation of the dismissal of the case against him.

"On March 8th, we raided 'Dollar John's' (Henry Langer) of No. 6 St. Mark's place, and on April 18 we raided Sam Paul's at No. 134 East Thirtieth street. Both of these gamblers were represented in court by Aaron J. Levy, the lawyer now appearing for Libby and Shapiro, owners of the automobile used by the murderers of Herman Rosenthal. Three of the prisoners taken in "Dollar John's" place were convicted and fined $50 apiece, and three of the prisoners from Sam Paul's were convicted and fined like sums. On July 8 we raided Sam Paul's again, and some of the prisoners taken in the first raid and all of those taken in the second raid are still to be tried in the courts. We understand that the real political influence behind Sam Paul is one of the most prominent leaders in the Republican party.

"Herman Rosenthal fought us harder than any of the gamblers we closed down. He had a three-year lease on his place, and under the law his conviction upon our evidence meant the cancellation of the lease. He did not want to go back to the lower east side. In order to retain his prestige as an uptown gambler he was willing to go to any ends in an effort to blacken the reputation of Lieut. Becker.

"Up to the time of his unfortunate killing he was the first instance on record where a gambler was sufficiently cunning to make it appear on the face of things that the man who had closed his place up and was doing his utmost to drive him out of business was really his secret partner.

BECKER BROKE INTO 75 PLACES IN YEAR'S RAIDING.

"Lieut. Becker finished up his first year probably in appreciation of the dismissal of the case against him.

"On March 8th, we raided 'Dollar John's' (Henry Langer) of No. 6 St. Mark's place, and on April 18 we raided Sam Paul's at No. 134 East Thirtieth street. Both of these gamblers were represented in court by Aaron J. Levy, the lawyer now appearing for Libby and Shapiro, owners of the automobile used by the murderers of Herman Rosenthal. Three of the prisoners taken in "Dollar John's" place were convicted and fined $50 apiece, and three of the prisoners from Sam Paul's were convicted and fined like sums. On July 8 we raided Sam Paul's again, and some of the prisoners taken in the first raid and all of those taken in the second raid are still to be tried in the courts. We understand that the real political influence behind Sam Paul is one of the most prominent leaders in the Republican party.

"Herman Rosenthal fought us harder than any of the gamblers we closed down. He had a three-year lease on his place, and under the law his conviction upon our evidence meant the cancellation of the lease. He did not want to go back to the lower east side. In order to retain his prestige as an uptown gambler he was willing to go to any ends in an effort to blacken the reputation of Lieut. Becker.

"Up to the time of his unfortunate killing he was the first instance on record where a gambler was sufficiently cunning to make it appear on the face of things that the man who had closed his place up and was doing his utmost to drive him out of business was really his secret partner.

BECKER BROKE INTO 75 PLACES IN YEAR'S RAIDING.

"Lieut. Becker finished up his first year probably in appreciation of the dismissal of the case against him.

"On March 8th, we raided 'Dollar John's' (Henry Langer) of No. 6 St. Mark's place, and on April 18 we raided Sam Paul's at No. 134 East Thirtieth street. Both of these gamblers were represented in court by Aaron J. Levy, the lawyer now appearing for Libby and Shapiro, owners of the automobile used by the murderers of Herman Rosenthal. Three of the prisoners taken in "Dollar John's" place were convicted and fined $50 apiece, and three of the prisoners from Sam Paul's were convicted and fined like sums. On July 8 we raided Sam Paul's again, and some of the prisoners taken in the first raid and all of those taken in the second raid are still to be tried in the courts. We understand that the real political influence behind Sam Paul is one of the most prominent leaders in the Republican party.

"Herman Rosenthal fought us harder than any of the gamblers we closed down. He had a three-year lease on his place, and under the law his conviction upon our evidence meant the cancellation of the lease. He did not want to go back to the lower east side. In order to retain his prestige as an uptown gambler he was willing to go to any ends in an effort to blacken the reputation of Lieut. Becker.

"Up to the time of his unfortunate killing he was the first instance on record where a gambler was sufficiently cunning to make it appear on the face of things that the man who had closed his place up and was doing his utmost to drive him out of business was really his secret partner.

BECKER BROKE INTO 75 PLACES IN YEAR'S RAIDING.

"Lieut. Becker finished up his first year probably in appreciation of the dismissal of the case against him.

"On March 8th, we raided 'Dollar John's' (Henry Langer) of No. 6 St. Mark's place, and on April 18 we raided Sam Paul's at No. 134 East Thirtieth street. Both of these gamblers were represented in court by Aaron J. Levy, the lawyer now appearing for Libby and Shapiro, owners of the automobile used by the murderers of Herman Rosenthal. Three of the prisoners taken in "Dollar John's" place were convicted and fined $50 apiece, and three of the prisoners from Sam Paul's were convicted and fined like sums. On July 8 we raided Sam Paul's again, and some of the prisoners taken in the first raid and all of those taken in the second raid are still to be tried in the courts. We understand that the real political influence behind Sam Paul is one of the most prominent leaders in the Republican party.

"Herman Rosenthal fought us harder than any of the gamblers we closed down. He had a three-year lease on his place, and under the law his conviction upon our evidence meant the cancellation of the lease. He did not want to go back to the lower east side. In order to retain his prestige as an uptown gambler he was willing to go to any ends in an effort to blacken the reputation of Lieut. Becker.

"Up to the time of his unfortunate killing he was the first instance on record where a gambler was sufficiently cunning to make it appear on the face of things that the man who had closed his place up and was doing his utmost to drive him out of business was really his secret partner.

HORACE WATERS & CO

WATERS PIANOS

Founded 1845

If you buy a Waters Piano you are assured of two things: of getting a good toned piano and of getting it at a reasonable price.

The good tone of the Waters Piano excels in power and brilliancy and sweet, musical quality, but it is also a durable tone that will stand up well with hard usage and under trying conditions.

There are reasonable prices of the Waters Pianos are in the interests of true economy and represent highest piano quality at genuine piano values.

Waters Autolaplay pianos have the same superb tone quality as the Waters Pianos and the Autolaplay prices also are reasonable.

Send Postal for Catalogue.

Horace Waters & Co.,

Three Stores:

134 Fifth Ave., near 18th St.

127 West 42d St., nr. B'way

Harlem Branch (Open Evenings)

254 W. 125th St., nr. 8th Ave.

SPECIAL

To-Day and To-Morrow

The Cammeyer price concession Sale

Women's

$3.50, $4, $5, $7

Pumps and Low Shoes

$2.85

Cammeyer

Stamped on a Standard Merit

6" Ave. & 20" St.

FILMS FREE

Developed

When prints are returned from us, we will send you a free film. Price for prints and film. 10¢. 25¢. 50¢. 75¢. 1.00. 1.25. 1.50. 1.75. 2.00. 2.25. 2.50. 2.75. 3.00. 3.25. 3.50. 3.75. 4.00. 4.25. 4.50. 4.75. 5.00. 5.25. 5.50. 5.75. 6.00. 6.25. 6.50. 6.75. 7.00. 7.25. 7.50. 7.75. 8.00. 8.25. 8.50. 8.75. 9.00. 9.25. 9.50. 9.75. 10.00. 10.25. 10.50. 10.75. 11.00. 11.25. 11.50. 11.75. 12.00. 12.25. 12.50. 12.75. 13.00. 13.25. 13.50. 13.75. 14.00. 14.25. 14.50. 14.75. 15.00. 15.25. 15.50. 15.75. 16.00. 16.25. 16.50. 16.75. 17.00. 17.25. 17.50. 17.75. 18.00. 18.25. 18.50. 18.75. 19.00. 19.25. 19.50. 19.75. 20.00. 20.25. 20.50. 20.75. 21.00. 21.25. 21.50. 21.75. 22.00. 22.25. 22.50. 22.75. 23.00. 23.25. 23.50. 23.75. 24.00. 24.25. 24.50. 24.75. 25.00. 25.25. 25.50. 25.75. 26.00. 26.25. 26.50. 26.75. 27.00. 27.25. 27.50. 27.75. 28.00. 28.25. 28.50. 28.75. 29.00. 29.25. 29.50. 29.75. 30.00. 30.25. 30.50. 30.75. 31.00. 31.25. 31.50. 31.75. 32.00. 32.25. 32.50. 32.75. 33.00. 33.25. 33.50. 33.75. 34.00. 34.25. 34.50. 34.75. 35.00. 35.25. 35.50. 35.75. 36.00. 36.25. 36.50. 36.75. 37.00. 37.25. 37.50. 37.75. 38.00. 38.25. 38.50. 38.75. 39.00. 39.25. 39.50. 39.75. 40.00. 40.25. 40.50. 40.75. 41.00. 41.25. 41.50. 41.75. 42.00. 42.25. 42.50. 42.75. 43.00. 43.25. 43.50. 43.75. 44.00. 44.25. 44.50. 44.75. 45.00. 45.25. 45.50. 45.75. 46.00. 46.25. 46.50. 46.75. 47.00. 47.25. 47.50. 47.75. 48.00. 48.25. 48.50. 48.75. 49.00. 49.25. 49.50. 49.75. 50.00. 50.25. 50.50. 50.75. 51.00. 51.25. 51.50. 51.75. 52.00. 52.25. 52.50. 52.75. 53.00. 53.25. 53.50. 53.75. 54.00. 54.25. 54.50. 54.75. 55.00. 55.25. 55.50. 55.75. 56.00. 56.25. 56.50. 56.75. 57.00. 57.25. 57.50. 57.75. 58.00. 58.25. 58.50. 58.75. 59.00